National Conference on Mathematical Analysis

M'sila, December 04, 2024

Mathematical analysis serves as a common foundation for many research areas of pure and applied mathematics. It is also an important and powerful tool used in many other fields of science, including physics, chemistry, biology, engineering, finance, and economics. The goal of this conference is to bring together young and expert mathematicians who work in the field of mathematical analysis and its applications in particular: Function spaces, Sobolev spaces, Pseudo differential operators and their applications in PDEs, to discuss the latest developments and share their research results in this area
